THE THEORY OF ADVERTISING

By WALTER DILL SCOTT, Ph.D.

Copiously illustrated with reproductions of recent advertisements, criticised in the light of the general principles discussed, and of advertisements made up in accordance with some of the suggestions of the volume.

The Advertising World says: "It is no figure of speech to say that it is as interesting to a thoughtful reader as any romance, and cannot fail to make a deep and inspiring impression on the mind of every man who seeks to know the causes that produce results in advertising. It must inevitably result in elevating the standard of effectiveness of much advertising and of increasing the productive power of money invested therein."

The New York Tribune says: "It is rich in suggestion to those who have to deal with the question of supply and demand."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger †. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price. ☜

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc. is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 30, 1904.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1903.

"THE books of 1903," as shown by our statistical tables which follow this review, counted up 7865, a total slightly in excess of that of 1902, which was 7833. The output of the past year differs so little from the harvests of the two previous years that it suggests nothing very new in the way of comment or criticism. The remarks applied to the quantity and quality of the books of 1901 and 1902 could easily serve again in describing the literature of the year under review. It was not a year of great achievements, although a year of many books. In scarcely any department of literature can a very large number of books be pointed out destined to a long life. The low average of the year was especially noticeable in fiction, which embraced few works that created marked enthusiasm. There must, of course, be years when the literary wave recedes, leaving the shore bare, or strewn with wrecks and lifeless forms. This seems to have been such a year. Should we be surprised that it sometimes comes, when we consider the needs of the publishers, whose mills must be kept going, and whose readers' demands may not be ignored? The natural result is overworked authors, whose inventive and working powers are necessarily limited. The year was the opportunity of the younger and least known of our authors, but they generally failed to come up to the high mark our older novelists had set for them. Aside from the flood of novels, the only noticeable feature in fiction was the almost entire absence of translations from Continental languages. American books in all departments were in the lead. The unusual number of works on sociology seems to be a reflection of the unsettled conditions of the times. Where apparently permanent additions were made was in the department of Biography and Memoirs, which included delightfully readable works.

The losses through death in the ranks of our own writers and those of other countries do not show so many of world renown as in 1902. Herbert Spencer, the great scientist, certainly stands at the head of the list of those we most deeply mourn. Theodor Mommsen, the German historian, and the Right Honorable William Edward Lecky, the English historian, the Reverend Frederic William Farrar, Dean of Canterbury, and Professor Alexander Bain, of Aberdeen University, come next to him in literary importance. Pope Leo XIII., respected through the land for his character and learning, died universally mourned. Sincere sorrow was excited through the death of many English novelists, among whom were B. L. Farjeon, George Gissing, Hugh S. Scott, ("Henry Seton Merriman,") John Henry Shorthouse, the author of "John Inglesant," and Ada Ellen Bayly ("Edna Lyall"). William Ernest Henley, poet and critic, is also to be named, and Albert Dresden Vandam, author of "An Englishman in Paris," and Paul Blouet, ("Max O'Rell,") the great traveller and lecturer.

Our own writers gathered to other spheres were Richard Henry Stoddard, the poet and critic; Julian Ralph, author and newspaper correspondent; Mrs. Mary H. Catherwood, novelist; Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, writer of temperance stories; Paul Du Chaillu, explorer and author; Charles Godfrey Leland, Rev. P. C. Headley, Henry Clay Trumbull and Henry Demarest Lloyd. Whistler, the renowned American painter and writer, also passed away.

We have aimed in the review that follows to point out the leading books of the year in the several classes of literature.

FICTION.

ONE of the permanent additions to American fiction is James Lane Allen's "The Mettle of the Pasture." With its scene in Kentucky and a love story of unusual power, in which is involved a question of ethics, the novel has been read with real enthusiasm. It is a true reflection without doubt of certain phases of American life and thought. William Dean Howells has seldom done anything better than "Letters Home." Taking a group of people from Boston and the West spending a winter in New York City for various reasons, he permits their "letters home" to relatives and friends, to tell an ingenious story. The fascinations of a great city are admirably described and analyzed. Henry James, another veteran novelist, is said to have reverted to his original style in "The Ambassadors." It is still involved enough, however, for his most ardent admirers, and also as prodigal in "words, words, words" as in the past. It is a story of Americans abroad, with its scene chiefly in Paris. "The ambassadors" are messengers sent by a loving New England mother to rescue her boy from the perils of French life and a demi-mondaine. All the men in succession succumb to the spell of the great Parisian metropolis. In "The Heart of Rome" Francis Marion Crawford returns to the scene of his greatest literary successes. Love and archæology have places in a charming story of what is known as the "lost water"—a stream that flows under the foundations of ancient palaces in Rome, often doing great damage, and responsible for thrilling tragedies. Quite different in style and method from Crawford's novel is "The Wings of the Morning," a Robinson Crusoe-like story by Louis Tracy. A beautiful young English girl and an ex-officer of the Indian army, cast upon an uninhabited island in the China sea, which is invaded by Dyaks, are the characters. The finding of a gold mine, and some extremely sensational incidents, are among the details of a most readable novel. "The One Woman," by Thomas Dixon, Jr., created almost as much excitement as his "Leopard's Spots." Like that novel, it has a motive, which relates to a man's freedom to love as he will—and a woman's also for that matter. The novel has little literary quality, but is not without attraction, as it seems to be a chapter from a real experience. Two stories of Kentucky, apparently sketched from life, are John Fox, Jr.'s "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" and John Uri Lloyd's "Red Head." Mr. Lloyd will be remembered as the author of that successful novel, "Stringtown on the Pike." In "Red Head" he offers an accurate portrayal "of feud-life" in Kentucky, mingled with a fresh and youthful love story. John Fox's story pictures sympathetically boy life among the Kentucky mountaineers. The last novel of Frank Norris, "The Pit," was the second in his trilogy of "The Epic of the Wheat." "The Octopus" was the first volume. Whether the third volume, "The Wolf," will appear from some other pen is not known. "The Pit" is the fictitious narrative of a "deal" in the Chicago wheat pit. Among the "best sellers" through the year was Thomas Nelson Page's "Gordon Keith." Its manly, lovable hero won all hearts. The narrative is a masterly mingling of pathos and humor. Also a "seller" was Richard Harding Davis's "The Bar Sinister," an inimitable dog story which shared the honors with Jack London's "Call of the Wild," illustrating the relapse of a well-bred, well-born St. Bernard, from ease and luxury to primeval savagery. The Klondike's promiscuous inhabitants are shown as they influence the character of the dog. Machine politics and other social and political problems affecting the life of all our great American cities are the subject of the timely novel, "The Chasm," by Reginald Wright Kauffman and E. Childs Carpenter. "The Captain," by Francis Churchill Williams, is a striking portrait of General Grant. He is the centre of a story opening on the eve of the Civil War, showing great sympathy for the South. One of the last novels written by Frank R. Stockton, "The Captain's Toll Gate," was published in the early part of the year. West Virginia is mostly the scene, and the story has a strong humorous vein. Mrs. Stockton has contributed to the novel a memorial sketch of her husband and a bibliography of his writings. "Cherry," an eighteenth century love story, is scarcely up to the high water mark of Newton Booth Tarkington's other novels. "Hesper," one of Hamlin Garland's virile stories of the West, is full of real men and women, cleverly contrasted with conventional men and women. In "Colonel Carter's Christmas" we meet an old and fondly loved friend again. The tender pathos of Francis Hopkinson Smith's style, with its graceful sentiment and love for all men, shines forth radiantly from this dear Christmas story.

Our women writers are to be credited with some exceedingly clever novels. One that leads the list, and the first one of its author, is "The Law of Life," by Anna McClure Sholl. A well-known American university, (Cornell,) is only thinly disguised under the name of Hallworth, and here the story plays. Faculty and students are the characters. A passionate love story is evolved through an unusually brilliant dialogue. Mary Moss's "A Sequence in Hearts," (also a first novel,) met with a most favorable reception. Here again the clever dialogue is noticeable. "Lesley Chilton," by Eliza Orne White, has a heroine who holds advanced opinions as to the higher education of women. The author has a witty, literary style which carries the story to a most successful ending. "Good-Bye, Proud World," by Mrs. Ellen Olney Kirk, deals with a New York journalist—Milicent Waldo—who becomes the heiress of her aunt and gives up newspaper work for life in an obscure country town of Connecticut. Mrs. Pauline Bradford Mackie wrote a story of temperaments, with its scene in the tense atmosphere of the Arizona desert, in "The Voice of the Desert." Mary Noailles Murfree's, ("Charles Egbert Craddock") latest venture is "A Spectre of Power," another study of Tennessee mountain life. Katherine Cecil Thurston mingles scenes from London slum life and stage life with great success in "The Circle." "The Modern Obstacle," by Alice Duer Miller, ingeniously seeks to show that the lack of money is the modern obstacle to a marriage purely of love. A Mormon hero mixes things up pretty badly in "Tomorrow's Tangle," by Geraldine Bonner. "The Fortunes of Fifi" presents a little third-rate French actress living in Paris in 1804, who comes in contact with Napoleon and Pope Pius the Seventh. Molly Elliot Seawell is the author. "The Dominant Strain," by Anna Chapin Ray, is a delightful musical novel. "Mam'zelle Fifine," by Eleanor Atkinson, is a romance of the girlhood of the Empress Josephine on the Island of Martinique. The "smart" life in New York City and also at a country home is depicted in Geraldine Anthony's amusing "Four-in-Hand." Alice Brown wrote "The Mannerings," a love story that is enacted in a charming country house, remote from towns. The delightful "Commuter's Wife" was again heard from in "People of the Whirlpool," a sketchy story of Manhattan as it was fifty years ago and as we know it now. A little book that has scarcely yet received all the attention it deserves is Margaret Sherwood's "Daphne," an idyllic love story of an American girl in Italy. The writer's graceful humor and friendly descriptions of the natives are delightful. The author of "The Heritage of Unrest"—Miss Gwendolin Overton—produced a second work—"Anne Carmel"—as fresh and intense as her first novel. It is a story of the far Northwest. "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" found a companion in "Lovey Mary." If somewhat behind Mrs. Hegan Rice's first book in freshness and humor, it is nevertheless well worth reading.

The American short story received representation by many of our best-known authors. John Luther Long gathered under the title "Sixty Jane" a number of his best efforts in this line that have found favor in the magazines. They are graceful, dainty sketches, with an undefinable charm. "Dr. Lavender's People" is the name Mrs. Margaret Deland gives to her latest volume of short stories. Dr. Lavender will be recalled as figuring in many of the author's "Old Chester Tales." He is again the Deus ex machinâ of many of the people brought in contact with him. How he helps them, and consoles them, and sets them straight in the path they ought to go, is told in a half dozen stories strikingly rich in human feeling and human nature. Many wonderful psychical phenomena are the subjects of William Dean Howells's "Questionable Shapes." Henry James named eleven of his short stories and sketches "The Better Sort." Mr. James is always at his best in a short story, (so we think at least,) and this volume is certainly an illustration of "The Better Sort" in this way he has recently produced. A disciple of Henry James apparently has appeared in Mrs. Everard Cotes. In "The Pool of the Desert" we have four of her short stories, reflecting Anglo-Indian life, in rather studied English, but with a certain charm and interest. "In Old Plantation Days" is the work of Paul Laurence Dunbar, and is offered as a companion volume to his "Folks from Dixie." The colored people in the South "befo' de wa'" serve as characters to a number of short stories. Dr. Weir Mitchell's latest contributions to periodicals are comprised under the title "Little Stories," and Francis Hopkinson Smith's under the title of "The Under Dog."

It is the consensus of critical opinion that "Lady Rose's Daughter," by Mrs. Humphry Ward, was the leading English novel in 1903. It was reprinted in book form in this country after having been the feature of Harper's Magazine for more than a year, and received in that shape renewed enthusiastic attention. The identification of the heroine's career with that of Julie de Lespinasse, a beautiful and unhappy French woman of the eighteenth century, gave the novel a special interest. Reprints of English novels were less numerous than in previous years, and of a less high order of merit. "Pigs in Clover" was extensively read. It is characterized by a somewhat rude and uncultured strength showing originality. The pen name of the author is given as "Frank Danby;" her real name is Mrs. Julia Frankau. She has taken for her subject the South African and American millionaires crowding London a decade ago and seeking social recognition. "Lord Leonard the Luckless" stands for a young Englishman with an unconquerable honesty and a most unprofitable devotion to the truth. With all his old cynical humor Mr. William E. Norris tells the story of this unlucky young lord's career, showing that his best qualities led to failure. The recent death of Hugh S. Scott, better known under his pseudonym of "Henry Seton Merriman," lends a sad interest to his last story, "Barlasch of the Guard." Napoleon's campaigns in Russia furnish many of the scenes, Barlasch being a veteran in Napoleon's service. "The Adventures of Gerard," by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, reintroduces another soldier of Napoleon, a brigadier in his army, of whose exploits we had heard of before. In this volume eight new chapters of his adventures are related, the last one having its scene at Waterloo. A good detective story is woven around the death under suspicious circumstances of the wife of a rich Englishman. It comes from the pen of Max Pemberton, and is called "The Gold Wolf." Ernest Hornung's "No Hero" has its scene in Switzerland, where the young hero, an Eton boy, is spending his vacation. Here he falls a victim to the fascinations of an adventuress. "The Yellow Van" airs the author's socialistic views in a good story of England's richest and poorest classes. Mr. Richard Whiteing made his first mark with "No 5 John Street." Also taking up the problems of English life is "The House on the Sands," by Charles Marriott, the author of "The Column." "Robin Brilliant" was Mrs. Henry Dudeney's contribution to the novels of the year. It is a charming English story of country life, with a rather gloomy vein in it. "Richard Rosny" is likewise pessimistic, colored throughout by a secret tragedy like all of "Maxwell Gray's" books. The author of "Ships That Pass in the Night"—Beatrice Harraden—wrote "Katharine Frensham" last year. An uncongenial wife and the resulting unhappiness to her husband is the theme.

The only translation in current fiction from foreign languages in 1903 of any importance was Émile Zola's "Truth," (Vérité,) the last work from his pen. It was the third in a group of novels he had planned called "The four evangelists," of which "Labor" and "Fruitfulness" were the first and second volumes. The Dreyfus case figures in the present volume, which, however, is mainly a powerful attack upon the Roman Catholic Church.

BIOGRAPHY.

Biographies, Autobiographies, Memoirs and Correspondence have almost the same fascination for the general reader as novels. This is accounted for perhaps in the well-worn axiom "that truth is stranger than fiction." Year by year the good books in this classification increase in numbers and importance. G. F. Hoar's "Autobiography of Seventy Years" is only one out of many autobiographies of prominent Americans that we would call attention to. It is one of the most comprehensive and valuable works of its kind issued in 1903, covering nearly a century of history by one of our most distinguished public men. Senator Hoar never kept a diary, the two thick volumes which comprise his work having been drawn entirely from his excellent memory. The exciting and picturesque days he has lived through are depicted in vivid colors and with undoubted accuracy. A figure familiar to all old New Yorkers and one representative of our national literature from its early days was Richard Henry Stoddard. His "Recollections, Personal and Literary," edited by Ripley Hitchcock, contain reminiscences of literary life and prominent literary men and women in a period of over fifty years. Townsend J. Trowbridge's "My Own Story" also overflows with details of noted persons in literature belonging to the early and later part of the past century. Especially intimate are his pen portraits of the men upon the staffs of such periodicals as the Atlantic Monthly, etc. "Hawthorne and His Circle," written by Julian Hawthorne, is a son's tribute of affection to a famous father. He recalls the great literary men who surrounded the author of "The Scarlet Letter" in the years that preceded his death, and gives the impressions they made on him as a boy. "The Autobiography of Joseph Le Conte" traces the career of a man widely known as a man of science, and notably as a geologist. He lived in the South before the Civil War, and he has much to tell of various phases of life there that have permanent value. The great American astronomer, Professor Newcomb, in "The Reminiscences of an Astronomer" writes of scientific men and movements and of his own career with charming frankness and modesty. Henry James in masterly style depicts the life work of the great American sculptor, lawyer and poet in "William Wetmore Story and His Friends," having as his assistants letters, diaries and recollections. His knowledge, too, of famous people was wonderful, his correspondence with them forming a most interesting feature of this biography. Mrs. William Henry Waddington, daughter of the late Charles King, of Columbia College, and granddaughter of Rufus King, describes her official life in France as the wife of a minister in "Letters of a Diplomat's Wife, 1883-1900." The letters were written home to her family, and are charmingly gossipy and rich in personal details. "Memoirs of Yale Life and Men, 1845-1899," from Dr. Timothy Dwight, is a record of half a century, abounding in pen portraits of the old faculty, sketches of daily life at Yale, etc.

General John B. Gordon's "Reminiscences of the Civil War" is a contribution to a subject of universal interest. The writer tells of the war, as he saw it from the Southern side, but without exhibition of any partisan feeling. His recollections of the leaders on both sides, his many delightful anecdotes, and his graphic way of putting things make his work one of the noted ones of the year. Two famous ministers found biographers. The Rev. Lyman Abbott, editor of The Outlook, has made a volume on "Henry Ward Beecher," his predecessor in the pulpit of Plymouth Church, an appreciation of all that was best and lovable in the man, and not a criticism. "William Ellery Channing" received treatment by John White Chadwick similar to that he gave "Theodore Parker" in the recent biography he made of him. "Life and Letters of Edgar Allan Poe," by James A. Harrison, of the University of Virginia, gives a new picture of this much-written-about author's habits and works, the biography representing original research. Biographies of "Bret Harte" were to be expected. Two appeared during the year. The one by T. Edgar Pemberton is the authorized one. In the preparation of it Mr. Pemberton had placed at his disposal by the author's family everything which could assist him in his effort to give to the world a faithful picture of a representative man of letters. H. W. Boynton's "Bret Harte" is the first volume of a new series, Contemporary Men of Letters, edited by William Aspenwall Bradley. A life of "Admiral Porter," by James Russell Soley, has been added to the Great Commanders Series, the first that has been written of this great naval hero. In the American Men of Letters Series we note a new volume, "John Greenleaf Whittier," by George R. Carpenter, a fresh view of the character and writings of one to whom American letters is deeply indebted. Appleton's Series of Historic Lives included a new life of "Horace Greeley," founder and editor of the New York Tribune, by William A. Linn, and fresh biographies of "Sir William Johnson," of Revolutionary fame, by A. C. Buell, and of "Anthony Wayne," sometimes called "Mad Anthony," from the pen of J. R. Spears. "The Life and Times of Thomas Jefferson," by Thomas E. Watson, claiming to be an "unsectional" biography, throws little new light upon the character or career of the author of the Declaration of Independence. "Laura Bridgman," Dr. Howe's famous pupil, has had her life told by Maud Howe and Florence Howe Hall. Laura Bridgman was the girl who had only one of the senses, that of touch. Dr. Howe's ingenious educational methods are also embraced in this volume. "The Story of My Life," by Helen Keller, a deaf and blind girl, is equally as remarkable as the story of Laura Bridgman. How she was taught is explained by her teacher.

"Christopher Columbus," by John Boyd Thacher, is an elaborate and valuable work in three volumes, rich in original documents, never before printed, and in facsimiles of ancient books and reprints. The author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress" gives new and intimate details of the life of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria in "Keystone of Empire," presenting him in a most fascinating light.

The most important biography from English sources of 1903 was John Morley's "Life of William Ewart Gladstone," in three octavo volumes. The greatest of English statesmen is shown as the most powerful influence of his wonderful historical environment of nearly a century—his own story being the story of England's most splendid period. "Benjamin Disraeli," like Gladstone, cannot be separated from the Victorian reign. His name stands also for a famous statesman and one of the makers of England's greatness. Wilfrid Meynell has written of him what he calls "an unconventional biography," which scarcely touches upon his public acts. His aim has been to show Disraeli as the man, as son, brother, husband and friend—in which aim he has admirably succeeded. "My Relations with Carlyle" is a posthumous work of James Anthony Froude, designed as a vindication of his biography of Carlyle; it was found after his death in a dispatch book with other important papers. "New Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle" is naturally suggested by the preceding book. New light is thrown upon the characters of both Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle by these interesting letters. "More Letters of Charles Darwin" supplements his "Life and Letters," published in 1887. They are an almost complete record of Mr. Darwin's scientific work. "The Life of Voltaire" has attracted special attention. The author's name is given as S. G. Tallentyre, said to be the pseudonym of the sister of "Henry Seton Merriman's" wife, an accomplished lady, who co-operated with her brother-in-law in the production of the sketches entitled "The Money Spinner." "Portraits of the Sixties" takes in a wonderful list of people of note that Justin McCarthy knew familiarly in "the early sixties." A man of striking originality and great intellectual powers, a publisher and printer of Leipzig, (1752-1828,) has had his career depicted by his grandson in "The Life and Times of Georg Joachim Goschen." His correspondence with Goethe, Schiller, Wieland and other celebrated German writers of his time, opens up a new view of these great men. "Maxim Gorky, His Life and Writings," is a biography of the great Russian author, from E. J. Dillon. Dr. Bernard O'Reilly's "Life of Leo XIII." is an authentic comprehensive biography of the late Pontiff. "Schumann," in the series of Master Musicians, is more a study of the famous composer's personality than a consideration of his work. It comes from the pen of Miss Annie W. Patterson. "Personal Reminiscences of Prince Bismarck," by Sidney Whitman, who is an authority on German affairs, and who wrote in 1888 a work entitled "Imperial Germany," gained the information embraced in this volume through his personal acquaintance with Bismarck after the great Chancellor had retired from office. He claims he is the only Englishman now living who was in any sense intimate with him.

"Letters of Mlle. de Lespinasse," translated from the French by Katharine Prescott Wormeley, does not derive all its interest from the fact that Mrs. Ward acknowledges Julie de Lespinasse as the original of Julie Le Breton, the leading character in "Lady Rose's Daughter." The work in itself is charming, it's self-revelations betraying a woman of unusual feeling and spirit. A world-famed portrait painter writes of her picturesque career in "Memoirs of Madame Vigée Lebrun." "Theodore Leschetizky," one of the greatest living teachers of the piano, is the central figure of a book under his name, made by his sister-in-law, the Countess Potocka. It tells the romantic story of the man as he is known in the social and musical life of Russia, Hungary and Poland. The narrative was translated from the French by Geneviève Seymour Lincoln.

"Bismarck's Letters to His Wife," from the seat of war, 1870-1871, and "The Correspondence of William I. and Bismarck" are both noted works of the year taken from the German. The first is full of domestic and personal details. The second is made up of letters selected by Bismarck himself, many of important political significance. "Lucretia Borgia," by Ferdinand Gregorovius, relates the life history according to original documents and correspondence of her day of one of the most infamous women in history. Translated from the German by J. Leslie Garner.

LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY.

Literature and collected works keeps its high place as a class in our tables, more on account of the great number of new editions of standard works it embraces than through a great number of original works. An anonymous work said to be by several of the foremost American writers and full of genuine wit and satire is "The Literary Guillotine," which makes sad havoc with authors' styles and pretensions. It has been the source of much amusement. "The Responsibilities of the Novelist" gathers together many literary essays of the late Frank Norris, relating to the responsibilities, the true reward, etc., of the novelist. Hamilton Wright Mabie in "Backgrounds of Literature" wrote of seven poets and prose writers, describing their surroundings. He also wrote "In Arcady," essays and fancies dedicated to James Lane Allen. A six weeks' vacation lately spent in Oxford is the subject of Laurence Hutton's "Literary Landmarks of Oxford." He takes in succession the various rooms of Oxford Colleges, crowded with literary associations, and tells all that is of interest regarding their past occupants. "America in Literature," by George E. Woodberry, is composed of papers which originally appeared in Harper's Magazine and Harper's Weekly. "American Myths and Legends" brings together the many odd stories that are found in the histories of many cities and towns all over the country. Charles Montgomery Skinner is the compiler of this interesting work. Essays and sketches which take in a variety of subjects, literary and otherwise, are contained in "Exits and Entrances," by Charles Warren Stoddard. Thomas Bailey Aldrich has gathered in a new volume entitled "Ponkapog Papers" a sheaf of miscellaneous notes and essays—critical, autobiographical, anecdotical and descriptive. Helen Keller's essay on "Optimism" is most inspiring. Edwin L. Shuman's "Practical Journalism" and Julian Ralph's "Making of a Journalist" are treasure houses of useful information and good stories. Oscar Kuhn's "The Great Poets of Italy" treats of the origins of Italian literature, of Dante, Petrarch, Boccaccio, Ariosto and Tasso, including translations of the most brilliant passages from the authors' works.

The accomplished Orientalist, Clément Huart, contributed "A History of Arabic Literature" to the series of "Short histories of the literatures of the world," edited by Edmund Gosse. We get this from the other side, having been translated from the author's manuscript by Lady Mary Loyd. Belonging to the same series as the former work is William Peterfield Trent's "History of American Literature," covering the years 1607-1865. Written with great care, and divided into books, it is of special value to writers and students. The second part of Leo Wiener's "Anthology of Russian Literature" was published. It covers the nineteenth century, over fifty Russian authors being represented by extracts in prose and poetry from their works. Kastner's "History of French Versification" is a work of rare erudition for the student and scholar. Jules Cambon's "Essays and Addresses" touch on many subjects literary and political, and include many addresses given while he was in the United States in 1900-1902. "Ideas of Good and Evil" represent an Irish writer of the Bernard Shaw type who is just now attracting considerable attention—Mr. William Butler Yeats.

Important works of reference begun in 1902 had many volumes added to them in 1903. The "New International Encyclopædia," edited by D. C. Gilman, Harry Thurston Peck and F. M. Colby, was brought near to completion, twelve new volumes having been issued of the seventeen promised during the year. These, with the three published in 1902, leave but two still to come of one of the most up-to-date encyclopedias in the market. Volumes 4 and 5 were issued of the "Jewish Encyclopædia," of which Isidore Singer is the chief editor. As a descriptive record of the history, religion, literature and customs of the Jewish people it is without an equal. The first volume of Charles Evans's monumental work on "American Bibliography" covers the period 1639-1729. The "United States Catalog," in the final form replacing the preliminary edition, a comprehensive and useful index to books in print at the beginning of 1902, is the most important trade bibliography of the year. The fourth supplement of "Poole's Index to Periodical Literature," covering from January 1, 1897, to January 1, 1902, issued during the year, is an important work of reference, in turn supplemented by the "Annual Literary Index, 1902." The "Supplementary Index" of the "Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1903," is brought fully up to date with the publishers' catalogues of that year. "Three Centuries of English Booktrade Bibliography," by A. Growoll, is an exhaustive work on the beginnings of booktrade bibliography since the introduction of printing and in England since 1595, with a valuable bibliography by Wilberforce Eames. Ernest A. Baker, editor of "Half-Forgotten Books" and librarian of Midland Railway Institute, Derby, England, is the author of "A Descriptive Guide to the Best Fiction, British and American." This is a most carefully annotated catalogue that should be invaluable to librarians.

HISTORY.

The most voluminous compilation of the year in History is a work now in process of publication entitled "The Philippine Islands, 1493-1898." It is a very valuable collection of original documents relating to the early history of the islands, translated from the Spanish, French, Italian, Latin, etc., by Emma Helen Blair and James Alexander Robertson, who have also edited them and furnished annotations. The work will comprise when completed fifty-five volumes, seven of which were issued in 1903. Historic Highways of America, a series of monographs upon the early roads and river highways of this country in pioneer days, had seven numbers added to it, making with the two published in a former year nine volumes. Archer Butler Hulbert is the author of the separate volumes. He has succeeded in presenting exceedingly interesting chapters from almost unbroken ground in our early history. Another explorer of a later period is Hiram Martin Chittenden, whose "History of Early Steamboat Navigation on the Missouri River" embraces the life and adventures of Captain Joseph La Barge, identified for fifty years as navigator and Indian trader with the commerce of the Missouri Valley. "Pioneer Spaniards in North America added to the World's Dis- coverers, describes the exploits on land and sea of noted explorers. W. H. Johnson is the author. Still another contribution to American pioneer history is Reuben Gold Thwaites's "How George Rogers Clark Won the Northwest."

Of great timely interest is "The New American Navy," by ex-Secretary of the Navy John D. Long. Not only may we learn from it all details of the new ships added to the navy before and since the Spanish war, but their exploits graphically related is no small part of the work. A short history of the United States, under the title "Eighty Years of Union," is made up of selections from James Schouler's six-volume work. "American History and Its Geographic Conditions" is a fresh interpretation of our national history, showing the tremendous part that geography has played in emigration, war, travel and commerce. Miss Ellen Churchill Semple, the talented author, is a favorite pupil of the great German geographer, Dr. Ratzel. "A Political History of Slavery," by W. H. Smith, is an account of the slavery controversy from the earliest agitations in the eighteenth century to the close of the Reconstruction period in America. Professor Lee, of Johns Hopkins, claims to give "The True History of the Civil War" in a volume under that title. There is much truth in it, and is interesting reading. Two volumes of special interest to New Yorkers are Janvier's "The Dutch Founding of New York" and "New Harlem, Past and Present," by Carl Horton Pierce, both enriched with many old pictures, portraits, maps and facsimiles. Poultney Bigelow's "History of the German Struggle for Liberty" was completed with the third volume, covering the period of 1815 to 1848. "The German Revolution of 1849," by C. W. Dahlinger, is an account of the final struggle in Baden for the maintenance of Germany's first national representative government. "Famous Assassinations of History," by Francis Johnson, epitomizes the tragedies of nearly twenty-five centuries. No nation at present so thoroughly claims the attention of the world as Japan. All its features as a modern world-power are portrayed in Ernest W. Clement's "A Handbook of Modern Japan," for the pleasure and edification of the average general reader. "The History of Puerto Rico," from the Spanish discovery to the American occupation, is the work of Mr. R. A. Van Middledyk, the librarian of the Free Public Library of San Juan. He had access to all data obtainable in the island.

English historical works published in this country were not numerous. Dr. Emmet's "Ireland Under English Rule" is a frank plea for Ireland, although the author has endeavored to be impartial. "The Nile Quest," by Sir Harry Johnston, is a record of the exploration of the Nile and its basin, and the initial volume of The Story of Exploration Series, which is to embrace the history of all great geographical discoveries. The history of the Uganda mutiny and Macdonald expedition in the Uganda Protectorate is told in "With Macdonald in Uganda," by Major Herbert H. Austin, who accompanied Macdonald. "The Land of the Boxers" is the story of the army of Great Britain in China in the late war, related by Gordon Casserley. The Story of the Nations Series was enriched during 1903 with four new works, viz.: Stanley Lane Poole's "Mediæval India Under Mohammedan Rule, 1712-1764; "Buddhist India," by T. W. Rhys Davids; pt. 1 of "The South American Republics," by T. C. Dawson, (covering Argentina, Paraguay, Uruguay and Brazil,) and "Parliamentary England," by Edward Jenks. Each volume adds to the fame of this favorite series. "The Sailor King, William the Fourth," although a study of his court and his subjects, deals more with the many brilliant personages that clustered around him than with politics. It is a charming book, with the name of J. Fitzgerald Molloy on its title-page, and numerous portraits within its covers. In 1902 Mr. Crosland wrote a satirical work, "The Unspeakable Scot," which was replied to the following year by one Augus McNeill, thought to be a pen name, in "The Egregious English." This is a mixture of humor and caustic truth that has excited considerable ire. "Paris in '48," by the Baroness Bonde, is a description by an eye witness of the French Revolution of 1848. "The Regency of Marie de Medicis" is a study of French history from 1610 to 1616 by Arthur Power Lord. "Contemporary France," from the French by J. C. Tarver, had its first volume issued. It is to be comprised in four volumes. The author, Gabriel Hanotaux, is a well-known diplomatist, historian and member of the French Academy. From the German came "The Kaiser's Speeches," forming a character portrait of Emperor William II. The work was translated and edited, with annotations, by Wolf von Schierbrand, and is based upon a compilation made by A. Oscar Klaussmann.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

The class of Description, Geography and Travel is largely the production of American authors. George Wharton James's "The Indians of the Painted Desert Region" is an artistically made book descriptive of the Indian tribes of the Western desert. It treats of the country, their industries, religious rites and personal appearance. Another work on the people and peculiarities of the western deserts about the Sierra Nevadas is "The Land of Little Rain," by Mrs. Mary Hunter Austin. Angelo Heilprin's "Mont Pelée and the Tragedy of Martinique" recalls the terrible catastrophes of 1902. Americans seem to infest every quarter of the globe. Eliza Ruhamah Scidmore charms us with her glowing pictures of "Winter India." F. Berkeley Smith is witty and entertaining in "How Paris Amuses Itself." W. Eleroy Curtis gives a record of a summer spent in "Denmark, Norway and Sweden" that is noticeable for its facts and figures. "Hill Towns of Italy" is the result of a journey through Central Italy made by Egerton R. Williams, Jr. Through photographs and a scholarly text we learn to love the birthplace of the Renaissance. Impressions of a brief tour in Spain are comprised in Jerome Hart's "Two Argonauts in Spain." "In the Tail of the Peacock" is a book devoted to Morocco, its title being taken from an old Moorish proverb which says "the earth is a peacock and Morocco is the tail of it." Isabel Savory is the author. Hugues Le Roux jots down some impressions of American men and women gained in a recent lecture tour in this country under "Business and Love." He entertainingly sets forth the difference between the French and American point of view both in "Business and Love." The Duke of the Abruzzi's comprehensive work in search of the North Pole is comprised in two handsome volumes—"On the Polar Star in the Arctic Sea." Although the Polar Star did not reach the pole, the sledge expedition pushed on to a latitude which no man had previously attained. "Literary New York," by Charles Hemstreet, pictures the various houses and streets in Manhattan made memorable through authors of a century who have been associated with them.

Francis Miltoun's work, "Dickens' London," is somewhat in line with Mr. Hemstreet's, centering, however, in a single subject—Charles Dickens—beloved by all readers of all countries. Everything connected with the localities in London identified with the life and work of Dickens is presented. Snowden Ward and Catharine Weed Barnes made a book on "The Real Dickens' Land," embracing an outline of Dickens's life. "The Carlyle Country," with a study of Carlyle's life, by J. M. Sloan, also belongs to this group. Our European Neighbors Series shows the inclusion of two new works during 1903—"Danish Life in Town and Country," by J. Brochner, and "Austro-Hungarian Life in Town and Country." Illustrated profusely from photographs and charmingly written, these books attract many readers. "Greater Russia," by Wirt Gerrare, appeals to up-to-date students of political happenings, as does also "The Great Siberian Railway from St. Petersburg to Pekin."

POETRY AND THE DRAMA.

The poetry of 1903 was even more meagre than that of 1902. Among American poets "A Christmas Wreath," by Richard Watson Gilder, stands for some of the best work of a veteran poet. The author of "The Slopes of Helicon"—Lloyd Mifflin—produced another collection of his beautiful sonnets under the title of "Castilian Days." "Lyrics of Love and Laughter" are new dialect poems by Paul Laurence Dunbar, fully as pathetic and humorous as any that went before. Josephine Daskam's "Poems" introduces one of the younger American poets, and "The Passing Show" binds together five modern plays in verse. The author, Harriet Monroe, won distinction ten years ago as the author of the "Columbian Ode." From English writers Rudyard Kipling's "The Five Nations" charmed his admirers. It is the first collection of his poems since 1896. William Watson's "For England" are conciliatory poems written after the Boer war. England's poet laureate, Alfred Austin, gave us a tragedy—"Flodden Field." Wagner's "Parsifal" was given in an English version by Oliver Huckel. Maeterlinck's "Monna Vanna," a powerful fifteenth century play of Italy, was translated by Alexis Irénée du Pont Coleman. Two versions of "Everyman," the morality play, were in the market.

ART BOOKS AND WORKS OF ART.

The leading art books of 1903 from our own artists were La Farge's "Great Masters," "John S. Sargent," a collection of sixty reproductions in photogravures of his finest paintings, and "The Weaker Sex," by Charles Dana Gibson. Gibson's book was a favorite of the holiday trade, eagerly sought by the admirers of Gibson's society sketches. The volume on Sargent was an important art work representing one of our most noted artists.

The critical introduction by Mrs. Alice Meynell added much to its value. "Great Masters" is a combination of fine reproductions of the paintings of seven artists of renown and appreciative papers in La Farge's best style. "The History of American Sculpture," by Lorado Tafts, is a comprehensive and profusely illustrated volume. Other richly illustrated books, with interesting and instructive text, were Desmond and Croly's "Stately Homes in America," from colonial times to the present day, Mrs. Earle's "Two Centuries of Costume in America," Moore's "The Old Furniture Book" and "The Old China Book," Lockwood's "Colonial Furniture in America," and Ellwanger's "The Oriental Rug." "The Art of the Pitti Palace," by Julia de Wolf Addison, is a history of the building of the palace and its owners and an appreciation of its treasure. "Japanese Art," telling of the leading Japanese schools and their exponents, comes from Sadakichi Hartmann. Van Dyke's "The Meaning of Pictures" and Carleton Noyes's "The Enjoyment of Art" aim to help all who have a leaning to art to more thoroughly enjoy it.

Under this heading we also gather works on music and the drama. An encyclopædia of music is offered in "The Musical Guide," edited by Rupert Hughes, which is a treasure-house of information. "Woman's Work in Music," by Arthur Elson, "Music in Art," by Luna May Ennis, both tell their story in their titles. Invaluable advice as to a "Musical Education" to those entering upon a musical career forms the subject of Albert Lavignac's work in Appleton's Musical Series. "Thirty Years of Musical Life in London," by Hermann Klein, one of London's leading musical critics, is made up of fascinating details of the people and the life of the opera stage. Thomas Allston Brown's "History of the New York Stage" was finished with the third volume. James Brander Matthews wrote of "The Development of the Drama." "Rome and the Renaissance," by Julian Klaczko, was taken from the French by John Dennie. It is the story of Italian Renaissance during the pontificate of Julius II.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

"The Russian Advance" is one of the books of the hour. It embraces Senator Beveridge's recent investigations into Russian conditions. "The Inside History of the Carnegie Steel Company," by James Howard Bridge, was the exciting cause of many heated arguments, and John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers in America, told of the problems, purposes and ideals of "Organized Labor." Other American works in this classification are Edward Stanwood's "American Tariff Controversies in the Nineteenth Century," one of the most comprehensive works on the tariff yet written; Morris Hillquit's "History of Socialism in the United States," the author being a prominent member of the Socialist party; James Albert Woodburn's "Political Parties and Party Problems in the United States" and also his "American Republic and Its Government," both devoted to a careful analysis of the government of the United States.

The well-known lecturer on economics, John Graham Brooks, in "The Social Unrest," claims to clearly set forth both sides of all questions relating to capital and labor. Stuckenberg's "Sociology" treats of the science of human society. The genesis, organization and management of industrial combinations are studied in Edward Sherwood Meade's "Trust Finance." "The Principles of Money" is the first volume of a series projected by J. Laurence Laughlin, which aims to cover the main field of money. "American Railway Transportation," a volume of Appleton's Business Series, is by one of our best authorities upon the subject, Professor Emory R. Johnson. "The New Era in the Philippines," by Arthur Judson Brown, is a statement of the conditions and needs of our new possessions, written from personal observation. John R. Dos Passos advocates the union of all English-speaking people in "The Anglo-Saxon Century." Books referring to business and social life are Mathew's "Conquering Success," and Marden's "The Young Man Entering Business," and "Toilers of the Home," by Lillian Pettengill, the unique record of a college woman's experience as a domestic servant.

To English writers we are indebted for Andrew Lang's "Social Origins," Herbert Fisher's "Studies in Napoleonic Statesmanship—Germany," an enlarged, revised edition of Lecky's "Leaders of Public Opinion in Ireland," and Moran's "Theory and Practice of the English Government."

RELIGION AND THEOLOGY.

Henry Preserved Smith, the Professor of Biblical History and Interpretation in Amherst College, puts into narrative form the results of recent Old Testament study in "Old Testament History," a volume of International Theological Library. "Old Testament Criticism and the Christian Church" is a dispassionate presentation of the subject by John Edgar McFadyen. "The Direct and Fundamental Proofs of the Christian Religion," an essay in comparative apologetics, comes from George William Knox. The Rev. T. J. Shahan in essays and discourses dealt with "The Beginnings of Christianity." Dr. Gordon, pastor of the new Old South Church, of Boston, defines his liberal theology in "Ultimate Conceptions of Faith," and George Willis Cooke's "Unitarianism in America" is a history of the origin and development of Unitarianism. "The Life and Teachings of Abbas Effendi" is a study of the religion of the Babis, founded by the Persian "Bab" in 1844, the work written by Myron H. Phelps.

"The Religion of Plutarch," from an English writer, John Oaksmith, discovers much to admire in Plutarch's pagan creed. The eighteenth series of the Cunningham lectures had for their subject "The Church and the Ministry in the Early Centuries," by Dr. T. M. Lindsay.

"The Great Encyclical Letters of Pope Leo XIII." are very characteristic of the late Pontiff. They relate to all the public questions almost of his time. A neglected religious movement of the Roman Empire is ably sketched in Franz Cumont's "Mysteries of Mithra," taken from the French by T. J. McCormack.

"Are the Critics Right?," by Wilhelm Möller, considers historical and critical considerations against what is called the Graf Wellhausen hypothesis of the books of the Pentateuch. It is translated from the German. Dr. Cremer, a German theological professor and a supporter of evangelical Christianity, made a reply to Harnack on "The Essence of Christianity." Harnack is one of the "higher critics." Delitzsch's "Babel and Bible" contains the two lectures deliyered before the German Emperor on the significance of Assyriological research for religion.

SCIENCE.

"The Nature of Man," by Élie Metchnikoff, a disciple of Darwin, is a contribution to optimistic philosophy, and is devoted to a consideration of the gravest and most serious problems of humanity. Metchnikoff was born in Russia and is now professor at the Pasteur Institute in Paris. Gabriel Tarde's "The Laws of Imitation" is a thoughtful psychological study by a professor of modern philosophy in the College de France. Both works are translated from the French.

AMERICAN BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1903.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY put on record during 1903 through its "Weekly Record of New Publications" 7865 books. Included in this total are the many new editions of standard works and issues of series. These new editions counted 2072 books. The new books counted 5793, making together the total of 7865. While we only recorded in 1903 32 more books than in 1902, when the total for the year was 7833, our tables show it was really a greater publication year than the previous one, the number of new books exceeding the new books of 1902 by 308. There were but slight changes in the various classes. Fiction still takes the lead, though not numerically so great as in several previous years. Law and Theology and Religion have gone down to the fourth and fifth places in our table, while Literature and Collected Works and Education have moved up to the second and third positions. History and Biography are classes notably fuller than in any past year. The other departments display few changes. Of these books 3549, an excess of 164 over 1902, were received at this office, and 4316 had their titles gathered from copyright entries, from publishers' notes and in various other ways.

The first table which follows gives in classes the figures, approximately, of the book production in this country in 1903, with those of 1902 for comparison:

The second table attempts to show the number of books manufactured in the United States in 1903—first, those by American authors; second, those by English or other foreign authors made in this country according to the demands of copyright law, and third, the books in English imported bound or in sheets, these three classes comprising the book production of the United States in 1903. The first and second classes are almost all copyright books. This table, like the former, scarcely claims to be exactly correct, as it is impossible always to trace the history of a work, from its author to its final publication. The table shows 5621 books by American authors against 5210 of 1902; 1356 books by English or other foreign authors, (made here,) against 1578 of 1902, and 888 books or sheets imported, against 1045 of 1902. The reprints were, as usual, the largest in Fiction, amounting to 396 books, far less, however, than in 1902, when 818 English or other foreign novels were reprinted. The very evident fact illustrated by the figures is the greater number of books by American authors published than in 1902 in every class.

The great decrease in all the more serious departments of literature, as well as in some of the very lightest ones, such as Sports and Amusements, Humor and Satire, as exhibited by the figures in both tables, is a curious and unexplainable condition of our book production. Scientific and profoundly philosophical writings are as conspicuous through their absence as are the simply amusing books.

REPORT OF THE REGISTER OF COPYRIGHTS FOR 1903.

The copyright business for the calendar year 1903, according to the report of Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights, is the largest in any one year in the history of the Copyright Office. Not only is the amount of the net fees larger, but also the number of entries and the number of articles deposited.

The total number of entries approached the 100,000 mark, the exact number being 99,436. In addition to these titles entered, it was necessary to carry over for entry January 2, 1904, titles received in November and December, to the number of 1307, because the articles bore notice of copyright containing the date of claim of 1904. Actually, therefore, 100,743 titles were received for registration in the year 1903.

The total fees received and applied for the year 1903 amounted to $70,230.50.

The new year, 1904, also promises to be large, the entries made on the first legal day, (January 2,) numbering 4031, at applied fees for this one day amounting to $2186.

The number of articles deposited during the year 1903 also exceeds the number in any previous year, amounting to 180,527 articles.

The appropriations for 1901, 1902 and 1903 include the sum of $14,040 to be used in bringing up the arrears of work prior to July 1, 1897, which amount should therefore be deducted from the total sum for appropriations for service as not properly a charge upon the current work of the office, leaving the excess of fees earned over appropriations used for service, $108,023.44 for the six years.

No exact statement can be made of the other expenditures on behalf of the Copyright Office. They include the cost of stationery and other supplies, ($881.05,) record books, circulars, and blank forms supplied by the Government Printing Office, and the printing of the "Catalogue of Title Entries" of copyright articles, amounting to 5067 octavo pages in 1903.

COPYRIGHT OFFICE WORK.

The current work of the Copyright Office is now kept as nearly up to date as is possible in an office where the daily business is so fluctuating.

The question is frequently asked how soon it is possible to obtain a certificate after an application has been filed. The great variance in the number of titles filed per day leads to considerable unavoidable corresponding variance in the time of mailing the certificate or notice. Taking, however, a fairly normal month for illustration; during November, 1903, a month having 24 working days, the bulk of the certificates for 2 dates were mailed within three days; for 14 dates within four days; for 6 dates within five days, and for 2 dates within six days; but in the case of 3 dates certificates for certain classes required seven days before mailing, and on November 28 the periodical entries were so numerous that nine days were required to clear the certificates of that class. It should be remembered that the month included five Sundays and one holiday, Thanksgiving Day. The average time, therefore, may be said to be about five days, although the certificates for 16 out of the 24 total days were mailed within four days. The total entries for the month were 7352; the largest number on any one day, 624, and the smallest number on any one day, 149.

At this date 4 P.M. January 6, all entries for the calendar year ending December 31 have been made and recorded; certificates made, revised and mailed, and all the entries have been indexed, the index cards for the year numbering 163,226. The deposited articles have been credited to December 31 in all classes, and in some classes to later dates, while some of the January entries have been made as shown by the detailed statement following.

A. APPLICATIONS ACTED UPON AND TITLES FILED AND NUMBERED.

Class A. Books, to No. 76,291, January 4, 1904.
B. Periodicals, to No. 67,038, January 4, 1904.
C. Musical compositions, to No. 62,337, January 4, 1904.
D. Dramatic compositions, to No. 4463, January 2, 1904.
E. Maps and charts, to No. 5056, January 2, 1904.
F. Engravings, cuts, and prints, to No. 17,745, January 2, 1904.
G. Chromos and lithographs, to No. 6370, January 2, 1904.
H. Photographs, to No. 40,637, January 2, 1904.
I. Original works of art, to No. 9240, January 2, 1904.

From January 2 to 6, 1904, inclusive, 5632 titles have been received for registration. 4557 of these have been numbered and 1045 recorded.

B. RECORDING OF TITLES, ASSIGNMENTS, ETC.

All of the above titles are recorded to December 31, 1903, inclusive.

Certificates for all entries to January 2, 1904, have been written and mailed.

Assignments: 970 received, January 1 to December 31, 1903, and 770 recorded. From one firm 200 documents await recording.

C. INDEX AND CATALOGUE.

The titles are indexed, (all classes,) to December 31, 1903, and classes D, E, F, G and I are indexed to January 2, 1904. The entries are indexed on cards by names of proprietors and titles. The total catalogue cards for the calendar year 1903 number 163,226, and these are added to the general alphabetical index, now containing more than 1,020,000 cards.

"CATALOGUE OF TITLE ENTRIES."

Four quarterly volumes of 13 numbers each were published, containing 5067 pages of octavo print.

The volumes of the "Catalogue of Title Entries" now printed are as follows: July 1, 1891, to December 31, 1897, 13 semi-annual volumes; January, 1898, to December, 1903, 24 quarterly volumes, or 37 volumes in all, of which the last twelve are provided with quarterly indexes.

D. ARTICLES DEPOSITED.

Catalogued, Stamped, and Credited to Jan. 6, 1904, as follows:

Class A. Books: (a) Books and pamphlets, to December 30, 1903.
(b) Booklets, leaflets, etc., to December 31, 1903.
(c) Periodical contributions, to December 31, 1903.
B. Periodicals, to December 31, 1903, and partly to January 6, 1904.
C. Musical compositions, to December 31, 1903.
D. Dramatic compositions, to December 31, 1903.
E. Maps and charts, to December 31, 1903.
F. Engravings, cuts, and prints, to December 28, 1903.
G. Chromos and lithographs, to December 28, 1903.
H. Photographs, to December 28, 1903.
I. Photographs of works of art, to December 31, 1903.

ENGLISH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1903.

THE total number of books recorded by the London Publishers' Circular in 1903 is about a hundred below 1899 and 1898, four hundred below 1897, and a thousand above 1902; but there is an increase in recorded miscellaneous of about five hundred, and most of these are pamphlets at a few pence each; while there were about three hundred sixpenny novels during the year, most of them, of course, "new editions," not new books. The total of fiction is about a hundred more than in the previous year. Theology, educational, politics and commerce are up in number, arts and sciences and law are down; history and biography, voyages and travels, about the same; medicine, year-books, belles-lettres, and poetry and the drama slightly up.

The analytical table prepared by the Publishers' Circular, divided into thirteen classes, makes the following showing:

Divisons.	1902. New Books.	1902. New Editions.	1903. New Books.	1903. New Editions.
Theology, Sermons, Biblical, etc.	567	81	639	63

FRENCH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1903.

THE number of books published in France during 1903, according to the records of Bibliographie de la France, was 12,264, or 65 more than in 1902. In 1902, by the way, book production in France had reached an unusually low level, being, in fact, upwards of 800 titles less than in the ten preceding years. The number of musical compositions recorded in 1903 was 6824, or 105 more than were recorded in 1902, and the number of engravings, lithographs and photographs recorded in 1903 was 950, or 107 more than were recorded in 1902.

THE WORLD'S OUTPUT OF BOOKS.

FROM an article on "The Literary Production of the World" in a recent issue of The Independent, we take the following figures showing the yearly output as it has been compiled for the larger countries. Where blanks take the place of figures the information gained was not in any sense trustworthy:

	Year.	Books and pamphlets.	Year.	Newspapers and periodicals.
Germany	1902	26,906	1902	8,049
Japan	1899	21,255	1899	978

It is so difficult to get at the statistics of literary production year by year that it stands to reason that an estimate of the entire literary production of the world to the present day can only be relative, and largely a matter of expert opinion.

Paul Otlet, the Secretary of the Brussels International Bibliographic Institute, estimates the number of printed books since the invention of printing to January, 1900, at 12,163,000 separate works, and the number of periodicals at between 15 and 18 millions. THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in an article on "The Fallacy of Book Statistics" (January 11, 1902), pointed out how almost impossible it is to even gauge the entire book production of the earth. And even if the figures could be arrived at they would give us no accurate picture of the mental activity of authors and writers.

Peygnot and Otlet have estimated the number of books to 1898. For the following years Otlet adopts 200,000 as a yearly average. This seems rather high, and the figures of the table, which would make 150,000 per year a good average, seem more reliable. This would give the following schedule:

1436-1536	42,000
1536-1636	575,000
1636-1736	1,225,000
1736-1822	1,839,000
1822-1887	6,500,000
1887-1898	1,782,000
1899	150,000
1900	150,000
1901	150,000
1902	150,000
1903	150,000
	12,713,000

To the year 1904, therefore, upward of 12½ million of separate works have appeared in the world, which figures, however, include new editions and translations.

Otlet also estimates that since the introduction of printing the following percentage of different classifications of subject matter has held good:

Law and Sociology	25.42
Literature	20.46
Applied Science	12.18
History, Geography	11.44
Theology, Religion, Speculation	10
Miscellaneous and Bibliography	9
Philology and Languages	4.08
Natural Sciences	3.44
Art	2.62
Philosophy	1.36

As detailed statistics are only available for single countries, this must also be looked upon as an approximate estimate. In point of number of output, Germany and German Austria collectively yearly lead the world. Then follow France, Italy, England, the United States and the Netherlands. In speaking of classification and comparative mental value of publications, Russia and the Oriental countries are not taken into present consideration.

In creative works England leads the world, having by far the largest output of novels, romances and works of pure imagination. In Germany educational works, theological works and books for the young predominate. The largest number of historical works appear in France, and Italy leads in religious publications. The largest number of books published in the United States fall in the department of fiction, but works of fiction are generally duplicated in the English and American statistics, as novels of merit written in the English language almost invariably appear on both sides of the Atlantic.

According to Professor Otlet it may be roughly estimated that at the present rate of publication the average of books produced to every million inhabitants stands as follows in the most highly civilized countries of the world:

1 German Empire	354
2 France	344
3 Switzerland	338
4 Belgium	337
5 Italy	309
6 Sweden	300
7 Norway	262
8 Great Britain	175
9 Russia	85
10 United States	81
11 Spain	66

It seems safe to say that books number about two-thirds and newspapers about one-third of the entire literary production of the world. Of course, in the quantity of manufacture the periodicals far outnumber the book production. As far back as 1882 a calculation was made of the percentage of periodicals according to the languages in which they appeared, which resulted as follows:

	Per cent.
English	48
German	23
French	11
Spanish	6
Italian	2
Other languages	10

Professor Otlet made his estimate of the average of periodicals to a million inhabitants in 1898 as follows:

1 United States	510
2 Switzerland	320
3 Belgium	253
4 Holland	184
5 Germany	161
6 France	156
7 Great Britain	113
8 Austria	98
9 Chile	88
10 Italy	78
11 Russia	77
12 India	33
13 Japan	17
14 Egypt	11

The vast literary production of the world has naturally led to the growth of various manufactures that have made important changes in the economic conditions of many countries. The manufacture of paper has become an industry of enormous importance, as has also the manufacture of type and the various inventions that have taken the place of type. The manufacture of books and periodicals, their sale and circulation, employ great armies of men and women, and certainly in material ways the world is benefited by its fabulous book production.

THE LITERARY (?) ACTIVITY OF THE ENGLISH NOVELIST.

An observer of contemporary fiction, obviously a person of leisure, has been looking through the Mudie catalogue, and sends to the London Daily Mail some figures showing the number of books written by certain living novelists. Mrs. L. T. Meade has, with some slight assistance from collaborators, produced 107 novels and stories. Miss Braddon has written 63 books. Mrs. Emma Marshall has 105 titles to her credit; "John Strange Winter," 77; Miss Sarah Tytler, 57; Fergus Hume, 52; Miss Florence Warden, 52; Miss Evelyn Everett Green, 51; "Ouida," 42; Miss Adeline Sergeant, 44; "Rita," 41; W. Clark Russell, 41; Annie S. Swan, 39; S. Baring-Gould, 39; W. E. Norris, 34; F. Marion Crawford, 33; Mrs. L. Walford, 32, and Frankfort Moore, 30. Guy Boothby has written 31 novels since 1894, and Mr. Crockett 27 since 1893. W. Clark Russell apparently feels that to be credited with the authorship of 41 novels is to suffer an accusation not lightly to be borne, for he rushes into print to protest that a large proportion of his books consist of reprints of articles, essays and short stories, and of biographies. "These things are not novels," he stoutly asserts.

BEST-SELLING BOOKS OF 1903.

The Bookman in its January issue summarizes its lists of the best-selling six books which it tabulates monthly during the year in order of demand from reports received from leading booksellers throughout the country, from which we quote below the titles of the books and the number of points scored each month:

Lady Rose's daughter. Ward, Mrs. M. A. $1.50-$5. (May, June, July, Aug., Sept., 895.) Harper.

Spenders. Wilson, H. L. $1.50. (April, 34.) Lothrop.

THE GOVERNMENT'S BEST-SELLING BOOKS.

According to the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, the honor of turning out the "six best-selling books" in the government's diverse assortment remains pretty continuously with the Department of Agriculture, although some noteworthy outgiving of another branch of the government may occasionally break into the favored list. The report of L. C. Ferrell, the superintendent of documents, who conducts the great bookstore which the government has maintained since 1895, gives the following list of publications which enjoyed the largest sale: Department yearbooks, 3358; special report on diseases of the horse, 1300; special report on diseases of cattle, 1004; bulletin on ginseng, 3557; bulletin on the honey bee, 2135; chemical bulletin No. 46, 1636; bulletin on chemical composition of American food materials, 1330; bulletin on timber, 1809; primer of forestry, Part 1., 1066. . . .

"Almost ridiculously small as these figures are by comparison with those blazoned forth in private publishers' announcements, they are probably a very much more trustworthy indication of popular interest. The government reports and bulletins are, in the first place, entirely unadvertised, and it is to nobody's interest to invest any one of them with a fictitious importance. Furthermore, it must be remembered that all these are books issued primarily for free distribution, but which so many thousand people wanted so badly that they were actually willing to pay for them. As human nature is constituted, the prosperous farmer will hesitate much longer before paying fifty cents for a really valuable government book which his neighbor, by writing early to the Hon. Mr. So-and-So, secured for nothing, than overpaying seven dollars in instalments for a morocco-bound and illustrated manual of etiquette. It may be depended upon that the people who bought these publications really wanted them, and the reason for wanting them is usually plain enough. . . .

"Something like 5000 titles are for sale "at cost," but the government's method of figuring up the cost would bankrupt a commercial publisher. All these books, it is argued, would have been issued anyhow, even if sales were never thought of. Therefore the composition and making of the plates—among a publisher's largest items—are not figured in the cost at all. There are no royalties or commissions, and the purchaser really pays only the bare cost of paper, binding and presswork. The bulky yearbooks, for instance, are sold at from fifty to eighty cents; the live stock books already referred to—which, by a bookseller's standards, would certainly retail at several dollars—are listed at sixty-five cents, and the bulletins usually cost from five to fifteen cents each."

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the American Publishers' Association, held on the 22d inst. at the rooms of the Association at 156 Fifth Avenue, called for the election of officers to serve during the ensuing fiscal year, Mr. Charles Scribner declined re-election, and Mr. Frank H. Scott, of the Century Company, was elected president, Mr. Scribner consenting to his election as first vice-president. The other officers are: second vice-president, Frank H. Dodd, of Dodd, Mead & Co.; treasurer, Colonel Daniel Appleton, of D. Appleton & Co.; and secretary, Frederick A. Stokes, of the Frederick A. Stokes Company. These officers, together with Colonel G. B. M. Harvey, George P. Brett, Craige Lippincott and A. F. Houghton, form the Board of Directors. F. C. J. Tessaro continues as manager. The Association and the trade is to be congratulated that the affairs of the American Publishers' Association remain in such efficient hands.

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE PITTSBURG BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Pittsburg (Pa.) Booksellers' and Stationers' Association gave its fourth annual dinner on the evening of the 19th inst. at the Monongahela House. There were present about one hundred members of the Association and their invited guests, among whom were Clarence A. Wolcott, president of the American Booksellers' Association, and William D. Bevin, both of Syracuse, N. Y.; George A. Olney, L. E. Waterman, Jr., J. H. Hobbs, Ben. Flowerdew, and D. McLeod, of New York; Charles Ziesenitz, of Saugerties, N. Y.; J. J. Williams, of Dayton, O.; John T. Paine, of Columbus, O.; Frank B. Towne and Fred. L. Coggins, of Holyoke, Mass., and David Risley and John Macintyre, of Philadelphia.

The speechmaking of the evening was introduced by the president of the Association, Charles H. Clough, of William G. Johnston & Co., who addressed the gathering in substance as follows:

Gentlemen, it is not my intention to occupy valuable time talking Association matters beyond a very few moments. You are all either members of our Association or interested visitors.

Our members are all better off, financially, for having maintained prices, and would be still more so if we had more fixed prices—higher rates and observed them more closely. However, we did not combine for the purpose of "boosting" prices, but rather to secure uniformity and a reasonable remuneration for the capital and brains invested in business. In doing so we have really favored the consumer, because he now obtains goods at about the same prices, regardless of where he purchases his supplies; whereas before the birth of our Association prices varied as much as 40 per cent. on standard everyday goods, which made it appear that the stationer did not understand his own business. Now we can look our customer squarely in the eye and truthfully assert, "We are protecting your interest while furthering our own."

But there is a better and nobler reason than mere monetary consideration for the existence of our Association. Some of you who competed for years almost as strangers, and perhaps as enemies, are this evening drawn together by feelings of friendship that could have been engendered and encouraged only by the confidence established by our Association membership.

I want to take advantage of this opportunity to thank you for the courtesy that has always been freely accorded me when I found it necessary to make inquiries regarding your prices and business methods. I assure you I am too busy to indulge in such things from motives of idle curiosity.

Thanks to associated effort, the situation with the booksellers is much better than when all good $1.50 books were selling in the department stores at from 79 to 92 cents; but the American Publishers' Association has stopped far short of its duty in protecting the dealer. As I understand it, a book listed at $1.50 costs the dealer about 90 cents, and the expense of carrying on the book business is about 20 per cent., which, added to 90 cents, makes $1.08, or the exact price at which the publishers permit $1.50 books to be sold.

The Pittsburg Association, while grateful to the publishers for their efforts thus far, has earnestly requested them to consider establishing a minimum price of $1.20; even this figure would not afford the dealer more than a very limited profit when we consider the large capital invested, and the dead stocks of disappointing books that inevitably accumulate in spite of fate and the most careful conservatism on the part of the most experienced buyers. The time limit should also be extended from twelve to twenty-four months.

The stationers can lend only their moral support to the booksellers; but we must all be "up and doing" as an association, for the time to "let well enough alone" has not yet arrived.

Rents have leaped skyward; living expenses have increased fully 50 per cent. in the last two years, and now is the time to maintain prices if we would even hold our own.

Another matter which has been on my mind for over a year is a "Salesman's Dinner," to include every book and stationery clerk in the two cities. They could meet for a seven o'clock dinner, after which every mother's son of them should be made to read a carefully-prepared short paper on such subjects as: "How to Treat 'Crank' Customers," "Should the Booksellers Meet Department Store Competition?" "How to Sell a Fountain Pen," "Under What Conditions, and to What Quantities Should Dozen and Gross Rates Apply," etc., etc. I feel that the salesmen and their employes would both be greatly benefited by such an interchange of ideas.

At the January, 1901, dinner of this Association I said there had not been a birth, a marriage or a death in our Association during the preceding twelve months. Since then the grim visitor has entered our circle and claimed his victims. The Stevenson & Foster Co. has lost both the gentlemen who gave their names to the firm. William Stevenson died February 15, 1901. He was one of those genial gentlemen who always have time for a kind word and a friendly shake of the hand, and I liked him for it. William G. Foster died June 13, 1902. He was well known to the printing and stationery trades, and was related to the famous Stephen C. Foster, writer of our most celebrated Southern melodies. The third and last to answer the roll call of eternity was our associate member from Ohio. He did more for stationers' associations than any other man, living or dead, excepting only our most honored friend on my right. It was he who made the original remark at our 1902 dinner: "The purchaser does not care what he pays for an article, (within reason,) so long as he buys it as cheaply as does any one else;" and he struck the keynote of the whole Association business when he said it. He was the champion of the National Association movement which is to take shape in Chicago next October. When I asked him the object of a National Association he replied: 1st, To bring each association into closer touch with all the stationers of the country. 2d, To enable them to control prices more effectually, even though each local organization makes its own figures. 3d, To compel manufacturers to desist from selling direct to consumers, by refusing, as a body, to handle the product of any factory that does not protect the dealer. A few days after I bade him "Good-bye and good luck" I was pained to receive notice of his sudden death in Montreal, Canada, October 19, 1903. You all know I have referred to our old friend and associate member, Mr. Frank E. Hart, of Cincinnati.

The chairman next introduced George A. Olney, affectionately known throughout the country as "Uncle George," who spoke briefly on the "Benefits of Organization." He concluded his remarks by saying that a national organization was the only thing needed to complete the work, and that this was under way and in good hands. "Uncle George" also referred feelingly to the death of Mr. Hart and Mr. Chambers.

Clarence A. Wolcott, the president of the American Booksellers' Association, after several humorous introductory remarks drifted into a serious consideration of the book situation, speaking in warm terms of the value of organization, and emphasizing the pressing need of earnest support from all booksellers at this time. He said he was a firm believer in the word "net" applied to every book of every character. The present "sliding" scale he referred to as a "poor substitute," and closed his remarks by urging that the booksellers strive for one price, and that the publisher's price. The price printed on the back of the book, or in the publisher's catalogue, should be the price to all; no other should be known or considered, and this should apply to fiction, biography, science and books of every character.

In introducing William D. Bevin, the representative of Boorum & Pease, Mr. Clough said: "When I started in business with William G. Johnston, in April, 1876, the oldest stationers could not have told how many sheets of paper made a blank book quire, although it was taught in school and popularly believed that each quire contains twenty-four sheets, making ninety-six pages. Dishonest manufacturers and dishonorable competition had forced the traditional count down, down, DOWN, until some books had only eight sheet quires of thirty-two pages each—a disgrace to the stationery and blank book trade, for which there seemed to be no apparent remedy. Finally, in the face of open ridicule, bitter opposition and great disadvantage, the grand old firm of Boorum & Pease took the bull by the horns, and said every pound of his ugly carcass should weigh sixteen ounces; every foot of his skinny tail should measure twelve inches, and every book bound in his tough hide should contain one hundred pages to the quire—no more and no less. This was the first step toward honest blank book making; but it was unfair to the manufacturer, because the average price per one hundred pages was too much for thick books and not enough for thin ones.

"Again did Boorum & Pease stand out boldly and say: 'We will put every book on its own basis of cost and sell hereafter by the piece, thus establishing the only prices that are equitable and right to both the purchaser and seller.'

"It is an honor to have with us the representative of such a firm, and they are fortunate indeed to have in their service such a gentleman as William D. Bevin, who will give us some of his good, straight-out-from-the-shoulder remarks."

Mr. Bevin, who is a prime favorite in Pittsburg, received a rousing reception. He gave a good, sound, sensible talk on "Store Management," referring strongly to the value of courtesy to customers. He held that it was the business of a clerk, whenever possible, to sell goods upon which the greatest profit could be made. Mr. Bevin also said that it was money in the pockets of manufacturers to see that trade conditions were such that dealers could make more money, increase their business, and meet obligations promptly. There would be a better feeling all around if the dealers were enabled to carry on their business at a satisfactory profit.

In introducing Charles Walton, representative of Charles Scribner's Sons, familiarly known as "Pop" Walton, the chairman, like Silas Wegg, of old, "dropped into verse," concluding his epic with the lines:

The bookseller's trade, you'll all agree
Is not in the shape it ought to be.
But good "Pop" Walton
Is here to-night,
And'll do his best
To set things right.
I hope to hear, when he starts to chin,
That it ain't so bad ez it might 'a been.

Mr. Walton gave a good talk on "The Book Situation." He dwelt strongly on the importance of upholding the hands of the publishers at this time, and said that though the booksellers were not getting all they should have, the time is coming when they would have their share, and that that time would be here soon.

L. E. Waterman, Jr., who was asked to say something about "Fixed Prices," or anything else he pleased, began by telling some good stories. As he got warmed up he turned to

Mr. Clough and said he had always been a stationary men; even when a farmer boy he was so stationary that he never made a move unless his father stood back of him with a rod. However, he said, he deserved the thanks of the trade, local and national. At this time two attendants entered the room, bearing something large and heavy, covered by an American flag, which was placed on a stand near Mr. Waterman, who proceeded to remove the flag, and revealed a beautiful bronze statue four feet high, representing the Goddess of "Inspiration" with her harp, which he presented to Mr. Clough in an eloquent speech. A plate on the base bears the inscription: "Presented to Charles H. Clough, First President of the Pittsburgh Booksellers' and Stationers' Association, by some of his friends in the trade. Pittsburgh, January 19, 1904."

Mr. Clough was completely taken by surprise, but controlled his feelings sufficiently to say: "I thank you for this beautiful gift. It is the greatest surprise of my life, and (striking the strings of the harp) I hope it may be an emblem of the harmony that shall ever prevail in our Association."

Letters of regret were received from a number of expected guests who would have been cordially welcomed. A congratulatory telegram from the Chicago Stationers' Association was enthusiastically received.

After short talks by F. C. Towne, Dr. Horner, W. W. Waters, H. P. Pears, Charles Paulus and others the evening was brought to a close by all present joining hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne."

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE DINNER.

THE dinner of the Stationers' Board of Trade, given at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on the evening of January 27, was attended by about one hundred members and their guests. After the coffee had been passed around Henry C. Bainbridge, the president, extended a hearty welcome to all present, and trusted that when the next annual dinner took place the number of the members of the Board might be so augmented as to make a still larger dining-room necessary. Among the speakers who entertained the company were James Barnes, who told some good stories; Dr. S. D. McConnell, who referred to the phenomenal production of books at the present day; and John Brisben Walker, who appealed to the Board to lend its aid in bettering our postal facilities. John S. Wise, a well-known Virginian, told a number of stories in an infectiously good-humored manner that kept the company roaring with laughter; and Daniel Davenport, general manager of the Anti-Boycott Association, arraigned trades unions and their leaders. P. Farrelly, Stephen Farrelly, John A. Walker and Richard Bainbridge concluded the evening's entertainment with short talks. A letter of congratulation and best wishes was received from the Chicago Stationers' Board of Trade, and the secretary was instructed to reciprocate.

THE CHICAGO STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE annual meeting of the Chicago Stationers' Association was held at the club room of the Grand Pacific Hotel, Chicago, on the evening of January 14. The principal business of the evening was the discussion of the reports of the committees, all of which showed the Association to be in a flourishing condition. The election of officers for the current year resulted as follows: President, F. B. Gibbs, of Shea Smith & Co.; vice-president, Dwight Jackson, of Thayer & Jackson Stationery Company; secretary, A. E. Riddle, of George E. Cole & Co.; treasurer, A. H. Childs, of S. D. Childs & Co.; executive committee: Charles T. Meyrick, of Cameron, Amberg & Co.; Chas. A. Stevens, of Stevens, Maloney & Co.; and L. T. Marshall, of Geo. E. Marshall & Co.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' COPYRIGHT LEAGUE.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' COPYRIGHT LEAGUE held its annual meeting at the rooms of the Aldine Association, on the afternoon of January 27, the President, W. W. Appleton, being in the chair. George Haven Putnam, the secretary of the League, reported on the status of four copyright bills now before Congress, among these being an amendment to protect books in a language other than English from unauthorized appropriation during a period of twelve months, and one to protect form books. Mr. Putnam also announced that he had in preparation a compilation of the court decisions on copyright cases that would shortly be brought out for the League by G. P. Putnam's Sons. The election of officers resulted in the choice of the present incumbents, viz., W. W. Appleton, president; George Haven Putnam, secretary, and Charles Scribner, treasurer.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS INCORPORATE.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS after February 1, 1904, will carry on their business as a corporation under the title of Charles Scribner's Sons, Incorporated. There will be no change in the management or methods of the business, which will go on in all its departments as heretofore. Advantage will be taken of the opportunity for associating more closely some of those who for years have been connected with the organization. The officers of the company are Charles Scribner, President; Arthur H. Scribner, Vice-President and Treasurer; Edwin W. Morse, Secretary.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE mystery of the authorship of "Collections and Recollections," which has gone through six editions as anonymous, is cleared in the seventh. On the title-page appears the name of G. W. E. Russell.

HALL CAINE'S new novel will not be published next fall, as was expected. The delay is caused by the author's enforced abstinence from work for some time, on account of exhaustion due to overtaxing himself.

THE late George Gissing was engaged upon a novel at the time of his death, which he had called "Veranilda." Archibald Constable & Co. had arranged to publish it, but at present it is uncertain whether it is complete or not. A fourth impression of "The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft" will be published shortly by the same firm, and also a story by Mr. Gissing entitled "Will Warburton."

It is understood that Herbert Spencer's autobiography will be published in a few months in two volumes. The work deals fully with Spencer's early pecuniary struggles and the factors which influenced his habits of thought. The biography which Dr. David Duncan will write, in accordance with the terms of Spencer's will, will be in the form of a supplementary volume. It will cover adequately Spencer's later years, concerning which the autobiography is silent, nothing having been added in nine years.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Boston, Mass.—The Church Supply Company called a meeting of its creditors on January 27.

New York City.—The Boardman Consolidated Publishing Company, at No. 95 Fifth Avenue, has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to Daniel J. Haynes. It has a capital stock of $10,000. The officers are Lee C. Boardman, president; Amanda Van Brunt, secretary.

Omaha, Neb.—William R. Matthews, who for the past twelve years has been closely associated with the fine stationery and engraving trade in Omaha, will open on or about March 1 a handsomely fitted retail book and stationery store at 122 South 15th Street. Mrs. Matthews, who will take charge of the book department, is not a stranger to the trade, having been associated for several years past with the book department of the Megeath Stationery Company. Miss Miller, formerly in charge of the stationery and engraving department at the same store, will also be identified with Mr. Matthews in his new venture.

Springfield, O.—Three big publishing houses here—the Floral Publishing Company, the Home Publishing Company, and the New Era Company—all went into the hands of receivers January 22. The Home Publishing Company publishes the Chautauquan and Pets and Animals, the Floral Publishing Company issues Home and Flowers, while the New Era does a big job business.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

The Macmillan Company will publish shortly "The Adventures of Elizabeth in Rugen," by the author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden."

Payot, Upham & Co., San Francisco, Cal., have published under the title of "Two Argonauts in Spain" a collection of the vivacious and interesting letters written from the land of dons by Jerome Hart to the San Francisco Argonaut.

Interest among the Germans in New York in Bruno Lessing's stories of New York's Ghetto, "Children of Men," aroused by the reviews in German papers, has been so great that there is a probability of a German edition being printed.

The Colton Publishing Co., Washington, D. C., will publish on the 1st of February "The Aristocracy of Health," by Mary Foote Henderson, (Mrs. ex-Senator John B. Henderson,) described as "a study of physical culture, our favorite poisons and a national and international league for the advancement of physical culture."

We understand that the Waldseemüller map of 1507, the first to refer to America, was not shown in the original at the Geographical Society, at Washington, D. C., as noted by us in our issue for January 2, but in the facsimile recently brought out by Henry Stevens, Son & Stiles of London, who have the exclusive British and American rights.

The Outlook Company will publish this spring "A Preacher's Story of His Work," by Dr. W. S. Rainsford, rector of St. George's Church in New York, which is quite remarkable for the institutional work which it carries on. They have also well along a book entitled "Tolstoy the Man," by Professor Steiner, of Grinnell College, an authority on Slav and Russian topics, who has known Tolstoy for seventeen years.

McClure, Phillips & Co. will publish shortly a striking and original novel by H. A. Mitchell Keays, the title of which is "He That Eateth Bread With Me." The story deals with the divorce problem. The author deals in the most straightforward manner possible with one of the greatest problems of American social life and has made a realistic presentation of the inescapable sorrows that follow into the grain of divorce.

H. M. Caldwell Co. announce that Dr. Sargent's work, "Health, Strength and Power," which was to have been published in October last, will be ready early in the spring. The publishers state that unusual demand on the author's time, together with the great care that is being taken to have the work one of the most complete introductions to the science of physical culture extant, has caused unusual delay in the publication.

The Oxford University Press will publish this spring "Elizabethan Critical Essays," edited by G. Gregory Smith, lecturer on English literature in the University of Edinburgh, in two volumes, uniform with Professor Ker's "Essays of Dryden." The texts in this new work have been thoroughly collated with the original editions, and are fully annotated, and Mr. Smith has written an introduction on the origins of literary criticism in England.

The "extended" history of the United States, in twelve volumes, on which Dr. Elroy M. Avery has been at work for the last seventeen years, is to appear with the imprint of the Burrows Publishing Company. It is to be distinctly separate from the Burrows Brothers' publications, in order to insure "mechanical excellence." The first volume is about to be issued, and will be followed every three months by another, until the twelve are complete.

D. C. Heath & Co. have in press for immediate issue an illustrated school edition of Goethe's "Hermann und Dorothea," with introduction, notes and vocabulary by Professor W. A. Adams, of Dartmouth College. They have recently issued a new edition of Riehl's two stories, "Das Spielmannskind" and "Der stumme Ratsherr," provided by the editor with a complete vocabulary and excellent English exercises based upon the text, which will greatly increase the popularity of these deservedly popular tales.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just published "Mediæval England," by Mary Bateson, in the Story of the Nations series; "Turkish Life in Town and Country," by Lucy Mary Jane Garnet, in Our European Neighbors series; Angelo Mosso's "Fatigue;" the second volume of James E. Munson's "First Phonographic Reader," and a "Phonographic Dictation Book;" also, "Liberal Christianity, its Origin, Nature, and Mission," by Jean Réville, Professor of Protestant Theology, University of Paris, France, translated by Victor Leuliett.

THE original manuscript of the first book of Milton's "Paradise Lost" was offered at auction at Sotheby's January 25. It was expected to bring at least $25,000, but the highest bid received was $4755—from the British Museum. The manuscript, which consists of thirty-three pages, was retained by the owner with a bid of $25,000. The manuscript is said to be on its way to New York. Rumor has it that John Pierpont Morgan is to be its new owner, he having outbid Mr. Pulitzer and Rockefeller who offered £1500 and £1700, respectively.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just brought out a new novel by Frank H. Spearman, entitled "The Close of the Day," a story of the stage as it touches the lives of a woman who is an actress and a man of large means who loves her; "Life in London," by Pierce Egan, and "The National Sports of Great Britain," by Henry Alken, two volumes in their series of reprints of English classics; also, "Steps in the Expansion of our Territory," by Oscar P. Austin, (Expansion Series,) and "The Story of Extinct Civilizations of the West," by Robert Anderson, (Library of Useful Stories,) which have already been fully described in these columns.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. will publish late in February "The Viking's Skull," a new story by John R. Carling, author of "The Shadow of the Czar," which ran through five editions. The new story has an ingeniously constructed plot, and tells how Idris Marville, true Earl of Ormsby, recovered a treasure hidden by one of his progenitors—a Viking of the ninth century—and how he cleared the memory of his father who had been wrongfully convicted of murder. They have just ready the last two of the eighteen-volume set of the National edition of "The Speeches and Writings of Daniel Webster," which for the first time places within reach of the public the complete works of the great statesman.

AN exhibition of the work of Scotson-Clark is being held at "The Picture Shop Beneath the Steps," No. 11 West Twenty-eighth Street, New York. It includes water colors, pencil drawings, portraits, monotypes, silk fans and "ligneographs," i.e., prints by a new process invented by the artist. Aubrey Beardsley is also represented in the exhibition by a very interesting drawing for one of his first illustrations for the "Morte d'Arthur;" and there are some charming pencil studies by Byam Shaw, about eighty pen and ink drawings illustrative of Indian life in 1821, by George Chinnery, R.H.A., and a first edition of Randolph Caldecott's inimitable "House That Jack Built," now very rare.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. will bring out this spring an entertaining volume about squirrel life by Miss Margaret Morley, author of "The Song of Life," etc. The new book will be entitled "Little Mitchell, the Story of a Mountain Squirrel," and will be illustrated with twenty-four drawings by Bruce Horsfall. They will bring out in February a posthumous volume of lectures and essays by the late Thomson J. Hudson, author of "The Law of Mental Medicine," which will be entitled "The Evolution of the Soul." Irene Grosvenor Wheelock's "Birds of California," publication of which has been postponed several times on account of the elaborate nature of its make-up, is now definitely announced for the latter part of February.

THE CENTURY Co. will publish in February a novel pleasantly off the beaten track, entitled "Tillie, a Mennonite Maid," by Helen R. Martin. The scenes of the story are laid in the Pennsylvania Dutch region, and the book is full of touches of sly humor peculiar to its own characters. Aside from the clever character delineation of this out-of-the-way people, a charming love interest is promised. The illustrations will be by Florence Scovel Shinn. Among books of interest which the Century Co. has in hand for spring publication are: "Roof and Meadow," by Dallas Lore Sharp, whose "Wild Life Near Home" is a popular favorite; a book on ballooning, by Santos-Dumont; "A Daughter of Dale," a story of life in an American university town; "Four Roads to Paradise," by Maud Wilder Goodwin; and "Order No. 11," a novel and interesting study of life in the South before the war.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY announce for early publication a new book entitled "The Watchers of the Trails," by Charles G. D. Roberts, author of "The Kindred of the Wild," "The Heart of the Ancient Wood," etc. The new work is a companion volume to "The Kindred of the Wild," and is another collection of those stories of nature and animal life which have made the author famous as the exponent of the primitive and savage. The author's sincerity and truth raise his work from the level of mere narrative to vivid photographic studies of existence in the untamed wilderness, and carry one far from the haunts of convention into the very depths of primeval forces and savage instincts. The illustrations are by Charles Livingston Bull, whose drawings for "The Kindred of the Wild" added so much to the attractiveness of that successful book, and are in complete sympathy with Mr. Roberts's text.

AUCTION SALES.

FEBRUARY 2, 3, 7:30 P.M.—Two private libraries, with other items, including Americana, fine sets of standard works, late medical publications, etc.—Harry Simmons, 96 State Street, Albany, N. Y.

THE NEW PHOTOGRAVURE BOOK

India, Past and Present

By C. H. FORBES-LINDSAY

Illustrated with 50 photogravures. 2 vols. Crown 8vo.
Cloth extra, gilt tops; in cloth box, net, $4.00.
(By mail, 40 cents additional.)

There are many books about India, but for the most part they tell the reader too little or else are technical works or bulky ponderous volumes. Mr. Forbes-Lindsay's work, "India, Past and Present," within a moderate compass supplies a comprehensive view of one of the most ancient and interesting countries in the world, with accurate information as to its past and present condition and picturesque glimpses of its fascinating history.

It is written from a personal knowledge acquired during the author's years of residence in different parts of the Indian Empire supplemented by a thorough study of the works of the best authorities. There is no other popular work covering the same ground and the reader will acquire a general idea of the whole country in its physical characteristics; its diversified and often magnificent scenery; its remarkable temples and palaces and other buildings; its antiquities; the many races by which it has been peopled; and its extremely interesting history.

Shakespeare

(FALSTAFF EDITION)

The New Companion to "Crankisms" and "Whimlets"

Brevities

By L. de V. MATTHEWMAN

Author of "Crankisms," with 100 Illustrations. By Clare Victor Dwiggins.

Sq. 16mo. Illuminated Cover. Net, 80 Cents.
By mail, 88 Cents.

Mr. Matthewman and Mr. Dwiggins both made enviable reputations by the unusual cleverness of their respective work in "Crankisms," published two years ago, and which has gained an increasing vogue. "Brevities" will increase the reputation of both; the aphorisms scintillate with a wit that though good-natured is often biting, and the drawings are even better than the artist's earlier work.

Everyone who has "Crankisms" or "Whimlets" will want "Brevities."

THE

By ROSE CECIL O'NEILL

PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED BY THE AUTHOR WITH OVER SIXTY ILLUSTRATIONS

THE LOVES OF EDWY, by Rose Cecil O'Neill, the well-known illustrator, is unique among love stories. Its heroine is Jane, a wonderful creation, fascinating both as child and woman. She and her two lovers are the centre of a novel of great originality and charm. Rose Cecil O'Neill's characters have the genial humanity of those of Dickens: her work shakes the heart with its pathos, humor, and power.

DARREL

OF THE BLESSED ISLES

By IRVING BACHELLER

THE LONDON BOOKMAN SAYS:

"The outstanding character of the book is Darrel, the generous, quaint old clockmaker, with his homely, tender philosophy and his love of the Blessed Isles of poetry and romance. The whole tone of the book is idyllic, and it is written with that simplicity and natural magic in which the author of 'Eben Holden' is a past master."

THE

LIONS OF THE LORD

A STORY OF THE OLD WEST

By HARRY LEON WILSON, author of "The Spenders"

THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD:

"Harry Leon Wilson has achieved a distinct advance in his new novel, 'The Lions of the Lord.' There are light and tender touches all through the book, making it on the whole as cheerful as it is engrossing."

THE BOSTON TRANSCRIPT:

"Heretofore no novel has dealt so vitally with the history, the scenes, and the characters of Mormonism, and no predecessor has so clearly struck the key-note of its comedy as well as its fearsome tragedy."

F. A. BROCKHAUS

Libraire Commissionnaire

PARIS. - - 17 RUE BONAPARTE

DEAR SIR: Herewith I beg to submit to you my latest terms for French Literature, which are such as you could make use of with the most favorable results.

I usually supply all French Literature at the publisher's price, and only ask a commission of 5 per cent. on scientific books. As to novels at 3.50 frs., I deliver them without any commission at a discount of 33 1-3 per cent., viz. at 2.35 frs. net.

As to Newspaper subscriptions, I invoice them at catalogue prices (official tariff of Newspapers) plus a commission of 5 per cent.

If you wish forthcoming works forwarded on sale and return, kindly state precisely the kind of literature you wish to receive.

I venture to say that you will recognize that these are the most advantageous terms that can possibly be given, and I hope I shall soon be honored with your orders, which will receive at all times my careful attention.

With regard to terms for English Literature please apply to my London House: 48 Old Bailey, E. C.; for German, Scandinavian, Russian, Dutch, Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, Greek and all Other Literatures to my Leipzig House: 16 Querstrasse, Leipzig.

I am, Sir,

Yours very truly,

F. A. BROCKHAUS.

BARRETT. Abraham Lincoln and His Presidency. By J. H. BARRETT, author of a "Life of Lincoln." 2 vols., crown 8vo, cloth, gilt tops, net, $5.00. (Postage, 38 cents.)

It is believed that the Hon. J. H. Barrett's long-expected new life of Lincoln will fill an important place in the list of biographies of this remarkable man, and will prove a notable contribution to the field of American biography and history. He contributes much new and valuable material, including unpublished letters, new anecdotes illustrative of Lincoln's character, and corrects many errors of facts and inferences that have gained general currency.

TUNISON. The Grail Problem. From Walter Map to Richard Wagner. By J. S. TUNISON, author of "Master Virgil," "The Sapphic Stanza," etc. 1 vol. 12mo, cloth, net, $1.25. (Postage, 10c.)

The theme of the Holy Grail is one of perennial interest. It stirs the poets and romancers of our own day as it did those of a remote past. Arthur and his circle of knights are but shadows of the men who made the politics and quarrelled over the religion reflected in the Stories of the Grail. These men of flesh and blood, who were capable of filling whole centuries with their activities, are worth considering in the study of a literature which they occasioned. Briefly to bring them to mind is the aim of this book.

BLAKE. The Man with the Hoe. "A story throbbing with the true inwardness of life and love on the farm." By ADAM BLAKE. 12mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.50.

A picture of American farm life as it is to-day, told in an attractive way that will interest both old and young. Humor and pathos are interwoven in the story, and around it all is entwined a love story of high literary merit.
